Regal pomp meets rock excess in a thrilling tribute to one of music history's most celebrated artists. One of the most elaborate pieces of music memorabilia ever created bears all the hallmarks of rock royalty.

Hot on the heels of the blockbuster biopic, Bohemian Rhapsody, QUEEN: A NIGHT AT THE OPERA salutes the virtuosity and showmanship of the legendary British quartet. The band's exuberance and the cover art of its first platinum-selling album shine through in every detail of an object of ultimate craft.

- Popular acclaim for Queen is at its highest level in decades. Freddie Mercury's personality, story and star power resonate strongly in the current cultural climate.
- Product detailing references Freddie Mercury's unmistakable stage presence, including his crown, velvet cape, pyramid-studded armband and his iconic 'bottomless' microphone.
- Under the wings of a phoenix, the figures of two lions, a crab and two fairies represent the bandmembers' zodiac signs, arranged around a royal crown encircled by the letter Q.

- The leitmotif Queen Crest logo was inspired by Britain's royal coat of arms and designed by art-school graduate Freddie Mercury before his band had even released its first album.
- Editions of 555 silver pens reference Bohemian Rhapsody's audacious 5'55" running time. Queen's signature anthem has charted on the Billboard Top 40 in three different decades.
- In place of 'Made in Italy', the capband features the engraving 'Made in Heaven' – a reference to Queen's final studio album, released four years after Freddie Mercury's untimely death in 1991.
- Gold editions refer to Queen's studio albums (15) and line-up (4). They are accompanied by a special presentation frame signed by Brian May and Roger Taylor.
